

Alliance Phasedown Priorities

- Predictability is important
- Global cap and phasedown is preferable to sub-global HFC policies
- Montreal Protocol process and institutions have worked well and provide the best opportunity for fair consideration of technical and economic issues
- Baseline should reflect actual demand
- Phasedown targets should be guided by reviews of actual technology availability
- Starting point should be based on “entry into effect” dates
- Schedule needs to take into account existing base servicing, sectors w/o alternatives
- Delays for developing countries are appropriate
- Global controls should not disadvantage developed country industry
- Funding for implementation in developing countries is important
- Domestic regulations should be consistent with global objectives. In the US, the HCFC-22 loophole should be closed.
